

BONALDO

Arpa

A versatile instrument for contemporary furnishing, Arpa displays a “musical design” that lends itself to infinite interpretations, combining visual lightness and functionality of use. The design bookcase, whose name in Italian means “Harp”, is characterized by the sequence of metal uprights arranged along the perimeter, which acts as a structure and support for the wooden shelves which run uninterrupted along the entire length and width of the piece. The rounded ends of the shelves soften the profile of the bookcase, making it ideal for any space, whether domestic or otherwise.
